In addition, many children living in slums are vulnerable to exploitation by anti-social elements. These conditions adversely affect education of sum children. Ironically it is only education that is way out of these extreme conditions. B.1-Environmental Hygiene and Sanitation Programme (Menstrual Hygiene Practice);

A majority of rural women in India employ clothes and rags for feminine hygiene. These materials might predispose women to reproductive tract infections since it may be difficult for them to keep their used napkins clean and free of harmful bacteria. Washing reusable feminine products with soap and drying them in sunlight may be difficult due to lack of water, private facilities and cultural taboos associated with menstruation. 1500 girls and women benefitted from this program

This, then becomes imperative that we understand the importance of education with reference to women empowerment. India is poised to become a superpower, a developed country by 2020. Education of women is the most powerful tool of change of position of society. Education also brings a reduction in inequalities and functions as a means of improving their status within the family.
